LOUD DEMAND ALSO FOR INVESTIGATION OF FARM BOARD ACTIVITIES AND AIRMAIL

(Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.) Washington, Nov. 28.—The row over the navy may be the most spectacular in the forthcoming crop of congressional investigations.

Congress, as usual, will search for dirty linen to wash. And it will have before it reports of many inquiries already completed, some of them submitted with recommendations for legislation.

The senate has led the field in this respect during the past few years, but now that the house is free of administration control the sleuths and inquisitors of the two branches may be equally busy.

Both the house and senate naval affairs committee are expected to inquire into the naval situation. They will not bother with the president's reduction of $17,000,000 in the navy budget or the Navy league charge of "abysmal ignorance" as much as they will concern themselves with deciding whether the navy is being kept at its proper strength.

Chairman Fred Hale of the senate naval committee and Chairman Fred Britten of the house committee, who will be ranking republican member when the democrats organize, have promised to fight for a $750,000,000 naval building program in order to be caught up with the treaty quota when it expires in 1936. Among Hoover's chief supporters will be Senator Borah of Idaho and Will Wood of Indiana, veteran republican chairman of the house appropriations committee.

Hale and Britten point to the American Legion's stand for building up to the London treaty quotas. So does Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, one of the American delegates to London, who says that unless we build up to treaty limits by 1935 "we will have no standing at the next naval conference."

"Any naval holiday that puts off our catching up with England and Japan is clearly a detriment to this country and advantage in armament to other countries at our expense," Hale says.

On the other hand, it is pointed out that we are spending about 60 millions on naval construction every year under the naval budget cut made at Hoover's direction. The building program for the current fiscal year calls for 11 destroyers. Five have been contracted for and work on the other six indefinitely postponed by President Hoover.

Secretary of the Navy Adams and various admirals are likely to be called before congressional committees eventually. Some reports say Adams would be glad to appear and testify, regardless of the Hoover attitude, for a stronger navy.

Postmaster General Walter F. Brown may be busy appearing before committees. Congressman Wood has promised an investigation of the letting of airmail contracts to four or five concerns sometimes called the "aviation trust" and of ocean mail contracts, contending that Brown has violated the law and that low bidders have been ignored. Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania, as chairman of the house post office committee, threatens a similar inquiry. Senator Blaine of Wisconsin heads a committee which has been investigating alleged scandal in the leasing of post office sites. Brown is prominently mentioned as the next chairman of the republican national committee. Wood, Kelly and Blaine are republicans.

There will be a loud demand, at least, for an investigation of the operations of the Federal Farm board. Many members declare they want to know all about the board's plunge into the grain futures market, its organization of the National Grain corporation, who has been profiting on storage fees from the government since the board bought all that wheat and cotton, its loans to co-operatives and various other things centering around the belief that the board hasn't performed the service for which it was intended.

Someone is sure to charge that operators in Wall street made a cleanup in the stock market through information received between the Sunday evening when President Hoover and some of the largest New York bankers met at Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's home and the subsequent Tuesday evening when the $500,000,000 National Credit corporation was announced to the public. There may or may not be an investigation.

Congress will have for consideration the report of President Hoover's Muscle Shoals commission recommending lease of the property to a private corporation. The report will be both praised and loudly booed. Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska will again introduce his bill for government operation and it probably will pass again and be vetoed again.

The senate Indian affairs committee, after a two-year investigation under Chairman Frazier of North Dakota which corroborated many charges of abuse and neglect, is also drafting its report and will recommend some legislation. There will also be reports on investigations made by the Tariff commission and the Federal Trade commission.

Draft Bill for Abolition of Farm Board

STATE G. O. P. MOVES FOR UNIFICATION OF PARTY FOR CAUCUS

PARTY LEADERS UNANIMOUSLY FAVOR PRELIMINARY INDORSEMENT CONVENTION

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Plans were being made today by Minnesota Republican party leaders to unify the party in the state for a preliminary indorsement convention to be held next March.

At a meeting held yesterday, presided over by State Senator A. J. Rockne, Zumbrota, the party leaders unanimously went on record in favor of the convention, the purpose of the convention being to approve a majority Republican state ticket, draft a platform and unify forces for the 1932 elections.

The pre-primary election will be held separately from the regular state Republican convention, that is called in presidential years to choose delegates for the national convention.

Included in the 50 Republican leaders who met yesterday were: E. L. McMillan, Princeton, Republican state chairman; Senator Chris Rosenmeier, Little Falls; Senator George H. Sullivan, Stillwater, and G. Howard Spaeth, secretary of the senate.

COMB NORTH WASTES BY AIR FOR TRACE OF LOST MISSIONARIES

SEARCH CENTERS OVER ICY BARREN AREA EAST OF HOLY CROSS, ALASKA

Seward, Alaska, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Two "flying missionaries" of the northland, Brothers George Feltes and Marshall La Peyre, were the object of an aerial search today that centered over the icy barren area of more than 100 miles, east of Holy Cross, Alaska.

The two priests took off from McGrath in their plane, "The Alaska Missionary," last Sunday en route to Holy Cross, 150 miles distant. They never arrived at their destination. Fears for their safety were expressed when a preliminary search failed to locate them.

Harry Blunt, Pacific International Airways pilot, flew to McGrath to aid the search. Although he has made flights almost every day, his quest has been handicapped considerably by the stormy weather which destroyed visibility. Two other planes were to leave Anchorage as soon as the weather cleared.

It was assumed that the two priests either crashed or were forced to land by one of the fierce blizzards which are common over that section. When they left McGrath, the fliers carried ample food supplies in addition to snow shoes and winter clothing.

NAVY CONTROVERSY TO BE THRUST INTO CONGRESS SESSION

LEADERS TO SEEK COMMITMENT FROM CONGRESS FOR NAVY EXPANSION

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Congressional leaders in charge of naval legislation will bring the navy controversy sharply to the front at the outset of the coming session, it was revealed today.

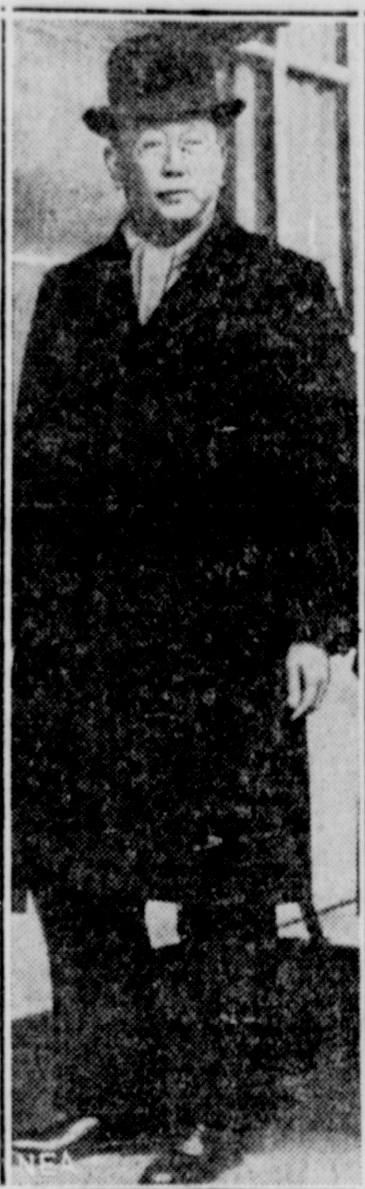

They will seek a commitment from congress, with tacit acquiescence of the navy department, putting that body on record for building up the navy to the strength permitted by the London naval treaty.

Chairman Hale, Maine, of the senate naval committee, plans to introduce a blanket authorization for building the navy to treaty limits, but without any appropriations. Funds would be sought later in the session when exhaustive hearings determined what sort of program will be necessary. House naval leaders plan to go further than that. They favor the blanket authorization for a treaty navy, but also plan to present a definite bill to authorize its start, with appropriations sufficient at this session to begin work.

Estimates of the amount necessary to build the navy to treaty strength vary from $700,000,000 to a billion dollars.

Authorization of any considerable program, such as is contemplated in the house, would be opposed by President Hoover.

TRADER SCOFFS AT IDEA INDIANS WOULD STARVE TO DEATH

THEY HAVE THEIR HORSES AND HORSE MEAT IS A DELICACY, KIRK SAYS

Manuelito, N. M., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Mike Kirk, proprietor of the trading post here, today scoffed at the thought that 500 Navajos would starve to death while awaiting rescue on the snow blocked mesas of Cerro Alto and Santa Rita.

A blizzard, long ahead of schedule, trapped the Indians during the annual pinon nut harvest.

"Why should they starve," Kirk said. "They have their horses. Horse meat is a delicacy among the Indians. If there is any question of starving, the tribesmen will slaughter horses to obtain sufficient meat on which to live."

But even Kirk, who knows the hardness of the Indians and their ability at woodcraft, feared the temperature.

"In 20 years with the Navajos, I have never seen such a storm," he told the United Press. "The temperature here was 19 degrees below zero yesterday. On those high mesas it must have been at least 25 degrees below. It must be even worse than the terrible year of 1918. Whole families were stricken and perished while harvesting the pinon nuts that year."

LIGHT SNOWFALL FORECAST FOR N. W.

Temperatures will drop downward tonight and Sunday with the probability of snow, the United States weather bureau said today.

Thinning clouds will afford sunshine and probably bring temperatures up above the freezing point today. It was 32 in St. Paul this morning. By tomorrow morning the temperature probably will drop to the neighborhood of 15 degrees, the weather bureau said.

No storm is expected but light snowfall is probable. Moorhead was the coldest Minnesota station reporting today with 6 above. Temperatures in the Dakotas were at similar levels. It was eight at Devils Lake, N. D., four at Bismarck, two above at Huron, S. D., eight at Pierre and 10 at Havre, Mont.

WILL INTRODUCE MEASURE AT NEXT CONGRESS SESSION

REP. CRISP ANNOUNCES INTENTION BEFORE SENATE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—A bill to abolish the Federal Farm board will be introduced at the opening of congress by Rep. Crisp, Ga., one of the democratic leaders who expect to control the house.

Crisp announced his intention today as the senate agriculture committee, investigating the general farm situation, heard a spirited defense of short selling and other grain exchange practices by Siebel C. Harris of the Chicago exchange.

Frazier Condemns Short Selling Harris' testimony brought from Senator Frazier, Rep., N. D., the comment that short selling is "pure gambling" and has "destroyed the law of supply and demand."

J. Earl Roberts, Philadelphia, appeared before the committee on behalf of the National League of Commission Merchants and opposed the use of government funds through the farm board to finance marketing of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Crisp's bill, which already has been drafted, would prohibit sale of any cotton and wheat now held by the farm board for three years, unless cotton can be sold for 12 cents a pound and wheat for 80 cents a bushel.

"I think it would be cruel to dump the surpluses on the market at once," Crisp declared. "During the three years farmers would be able to adjust their conditions. If they are wise they would cut acreage in wheat and cotton and diversify their crop."

The Georgia congressman explained that he had supported legislation creating the farm board as "an experiment," but had found that it, similar to all government measures, to interfere with the law of supply and demand, is a failure.

Roberts said no better scheme than the agricultural marketing act could be devised to "buy with government funds the political support of a substantial bloc of citizens." He was referring to farm board loans to fruit and vegetable cooperative marketing associations.

U. B. Blalock, New Orleans, charged that the New York cotton exchange circulated to its members a confidential letter soliciting a $100,000 fund with which to campaign for repeal of the agricultural market act.

Railroad Asks Permission to Abandon Entire Line

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—The Red Lake and Manitoba railroad company today asked the interstate commerce commission for permission to abandon its entire railroad, 33 miles, located at Beltrami, Minn. According to the petition the road never has earned a dividend on its $100,000 of stock. It will be unable to pay bonds soon falling due, as its earnings steadily are diminishing.

Houghton made a speech linking armament expenditures with the world depression but his remarks were hardly audible. He made his address a second time with no more success.

Before the meeting was broken up the conference adopted a resolution urging the League of Nations council to uphold the Kellogg pact and to oblige Japan and China to quit fighting in Manchuria.

Houghton told the conference, before he was shouted down, that two-thirds of all money raised by taxation today is used to pay for past and future wars.

"While industry languished, unemployment grows and bread lines lengthen, we are spending five thousand million dollars annually for naval and military purposes. We who pay the bills must seriously consider the need for a substantial measure of disarmament," he said.

Hollywood, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Tom Mix, cowboy motion picture star, was believed today to be nearly past the crisis in his fight for life against peritonitis.

"Tom Mix had a most satisfactory day. We hope in 12 hours to be able to report a more definite improvement," a physicians' bulletin said last night.

Walker, Ignoring Bitter Denunciations of Meddling, in Mooney Case, Greets Prisoner

San Francisco, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Inside San Quentin's bleak walls, James J. Walker, mayor of New York City, and Thomas Mooney, widely publicized convict, will meet today.

There they will discuss final plans for the plea Mayor Walker will present Dec. 1, when he asks Governor James Rolph Jr., to pardon Mooney.

Mooney, serving a life term on his conviction of a charge of having had a part in the Preparedness Day bombing in 1916, was reported cheerful in anticipation of the visit and more hopeful of gaining his freedom than in any time in the past 15 years.

Mayor Walker, pleased with the progress of his plans, said the meeting "might develop some very important matters."

"Naturally I am looking forward to meeting Mooney since I came all the way from New York just to ask for his freedom," Mayor Walker said. Mayor Walker continued to ignore criticisms of his conduct in interceding for Mooney.

"When I came to California," the mayor stated, "I said I expected that plenty of people would accuse me of meddling. I said at that time, however, that I did not intend to answer them. I said that the issue had become so important that it was necessary for me to risk such criticism. I said I was acting only as an attorney and not as mayor of New York. I do not intend to answer any charges."

MANIAC MURDERER ESCAPES GUARD IN SPEAKEASY TOUR

CONVICTED OF HAMMER SLAYING 18 YEARS AGO, MADMAN ABETTED IN ESCAPE

Beacon, N. Y., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—A madman, convicted for a Brooklyn hammer murder 18 years ago, was at large today, after an alleged trip to a speakeasy and a party with his keeper.

Frederick Nether, the maniac, was taken from Matteawan and abetted in escaping by a guard, it was charged. The attendants were alleged to have taken him on a tour of speakeasies before permitting him to stroll away.

The escape and the consequent charges came to light with the prosecution of Alfred Chabot, Matteawan guard, in court here. Chabot was held in $2,500 bail for hearing Wednesday.

The maniac was last seen Sunday night with the guard. Affidavits state that Nether was seen displaying a large roll of bills and that later he was seen in Newburgh buying many rounds of drinks in a speakeasy.

Since 1910 there have been at least a score of attempted breaks at Matteawan. One of the most sensational was made by Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stamford White. Thaw broke past a guard, jumped into a waiting motor car and escaped. Last year seven madmen overpowered six guards and fled. They were recaptured a few days later in Brooklyn.

Stimson Tells of Promise Stimson told the press Japan had promised not to advance on Chinchow. He disclosed that four days previously he asked American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes to tell Foreign Minister Shidehara in Tokio that press reports of an impending Japanese campaign against Chinese troops near Chinchow, aroused great apprehension on the part of the American state department.

On the following day, according to Stimson, he was assured through Forbes by Shidehara that he, the minister of war, and the Japanese chief of staff were all agreed these should be no further advances against Chinchow. The assurance was accompanied by word that military orders against such an advance had been issued.

Strike Affecting 50,000 Appears Inevitable

Manchester, Eng., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—A strike affecting 500,000 workers in the Lancashire cotton industry appeared inevitable today after expiration of the present 48-hour week agreement on Dec. 31.

Trade union leaders had little hope of avoiding the strike on New Year's day. The Federation of Master Cotton Spinners announced that the present agreement would be terminated at the end of the year and proposed an increase in working hours and an alteration in wages, said to envisage a 55½-hour week and a 12½ per cent wage cut.

Five New Claimants to Wendel Fortune File

New York, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Five new claimants to the $75,000,000 estate of the late Ella Wendel have filed notice of their claims in surrogate's court. They are John Wendel, Waukesha, Wis., farmer, who claims fifth-degree relationship to Miss Wendel; Miss Elizabeth Hoppe, 78, of West Bend, Wis., and her three nieces, Miss Henrietta Obermeyer, Miss Clara Obermeyer and Miss Josephine Haas.

SHARP CRITICISM DIRECTED AT U. S. SECRETARY OF STATE

STIMSON DENIES MAKING STATEMENTS PURPORTEDLY CARRIED BY PRESS

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Ambassador Debutch, of Japan, after a long talk today with Secretary of State Stimson, told newspaper men that Japanese troops would not march on Chinchow. He said his country's soldiery also was being withdrawn from Tsitsihar which was occupied recently.

The ambassador asked to be excused from discussing the statement of the Japanese foreign office regarding remarks made by Stimson yesterday.

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—American efforts to aid a settlement of the Japanese-Chinese troubles in Manchuria were severely shaken today by a statement of the Japanese foreign office sharply critical of Secretary of State Stimson.

The criticism was based on a news agency report other than the United Press.

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—A demand that the administration disclose its activities in the Manchurian dispute was made today by Senator Hiram Johnson, Rep., Calif.

The senator also demanded to know the true results of the American visits of Premier Laval of France and Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy. He accused the press of "doctility" in failing to publish the facts concerning American foreign policy.

Press of statements attributed to Stimson which quoted him as charging: That the Japanese army had run amuck in Manchuria.

That Japan intends to take Manchuria completely.

The statement also accused Stimson of "disclosing confidential exchanges" between the United States government and Japan.

Denies Making Statement Secretary of State Stimson after talking for 30 minutes to President Hoover and studying press reports of the Japanese statement, told newspaper correspondents he had never made the statements attributed to him.

Japanese ambassador Debutch was instructed by his foreign office this morning to inquire of the state department whether the statements credited to Stimson were correct.

The story circulated in Japan, which prompted the foreign office statement was carried by Rengo, a Japanese press agency. It was credited by Rengo to the Associated Press, Byron Price, Washington manager of the Associated Press, denied that his organization had attributed any such statements to Secretary Stimson in anything carried in this country or abroad.

The incident seems to have begun when Stimson in a press conference yesterday expressed surprise that Japanese troops were reported in the press to be advancing on Chinchow, temporary Manchurian capital and concentration point for troops of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang. The city is of tremendous strategic importance.

Stimson Tells of Promise Stimson told the press Japan had promised not to advance on Chinchow. He disclosed that four days previously he asked American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes to tell Foreign Minister Shidehara in Tokio that press reports of an impending Japanese campaign against Chinese troops near Chinchow, aroused great apprehension on the part of the American state department.

TRADER SCOFFS AT IDEA INDIANS WOULD STARVE TO DEATH

THEY HAVE THEIR HORSES AND HORSE MEAT IS A DELICACY, KIRK SAYS

Manuelito, N. M., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Mike Kirk, proprietor of the trading post here, today scoffed at the thought that 500 Navajos would starve to death while awaiting rescue on the snow blocked mesas of Cerro Alto and Santa Rita.

A blizzard, long ahead of schedule, trapped the Indians during the annual pinon nut harvest.

"Why should they starve," Kirk said. "They have their horses. Horse meat is a delicacy among the Indians. If there is any question of starving, the tribesmen will slaughter horses to obtain sufficient meat on which to live."

But even Kirk, who knows the hardships of the Indians and their ability at woodcraft, feared the temperature.

"In 20 years with the Navajos, I have never seen such a storm," he told the United Press. "The temperature here was 19 degrees below zero yesterday. On those high mesas it must have been at least 25 degrees below. It must be even worse than the terrible year of 1918. Whole families were stricken and perished while harvesting the pinon nuts that year."

LIGHT SNOWFALL FORECAST FOR N. W.

Temperatures will drop downward tonight and Sunday with the probability of snow, the United States weather bureau said today.

Thinning clouds will afford sunshine and probably bring temperatures up above the freezing point today. It was 32 in St. Paul this morning. By tomorrow morning the temperature probably will drop to the neighborhood of 15 degrees, the weather bureau said.

No storm is expected but light snowfall is probable. Moorhead was the coldest Minnesota station reporting today with 6 above. Temperatures in the Dakotas were at similar levels. It was eight at Devils Lake, N. D., four at Bismarck, two above at Huron, S. D., eight at Pierre and 10 at Havre, Mont.

WILL INTRODUCE MEASURE AT NEXT CONGRESS SESSION

REP. CRISP ANNOUNCES INTENTION BEFORE SENATE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—A bill to abolish the Federal Farm board will be introduced at the opening of congress by Rep. Crisp, Ga., one of the democratic leaders who expect to control the house.

Crisp announced his intention today as the senate agriculture committee, investigating the general farm situation, heard a spirited defense of short selling and other grain exchange practices by Siebel C. Harris of the Chicago exchange.

Frazier Condemns Short Selling Harris' testimony brought from Senator Frazier, Rep., N. D., the comment that short selling is "pure gambling" and has "destroyed the law of supply and demand."

J. Earl Roberts, Philadelphia, appeared before the committee on behalf of the National League of Commission Merchants and opposed the use of government funds through the farm board to finance marketing of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Crisp's bill, which already has been drafted, would prohibit sale of any cotton and wheat now held by the farm board for three years, unless cotton can be sold for 12 cents a pound and wheat for 80 cents a bushel.

"I think it would be cruel to dump the surpluses on the market at once," Crisp declared. "During the three years farmers would be able to adjust their conditions. If they are wise they would cut acreage in wheat and cotton and diversify their crop."

The Georgia congressman explained that he had supported legislation creating the farm board as "an experiment," but had found that it, similar to all government measures, to interfere with the law of supply and demand, is a failure.

Roberts said no better scheme than the agricultural marketing act could be devised to "buy with government funds the political support of a substantial bloc of citizens." He was referring to farm board loans to fruit and vegetable cooperative marketing associations.

U. B. Elalock, New Orleans, charged that the New York cotton exchange circulated to its members a confidential letter soliciting a $100,000 fund with which to campaign for repeal of the agricultural market act.

Railroad Asks Permission to Abandon Entire Line

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—The Red Lake and Manitoba railroad company today asked the interstate commerce commission for permission to abandon its entire railroad, 33 miles, located at Beltrami, Minn. According to the petition the road never has earned a dividend on its $100,000 of stock. It will be unable to pay bonds soon falling due, as its earnings steadily are diminishing.

Houghton made a speech linking armament expenditures with the world depression but his remarks were hardly audible. He made his address a second time with no more success.

Before the meeting was broken up the conference adopted a resolution urging the League of Nations council to uphold the Kellogg pact and to oblige Japan and China to quit fighting in Manchuria.

Houghton told the conference, before he was shouted down, that two-thirds of all money raised by taxation today is used to pay for past and future wars.

"While industry languished, unemployment grows and bread lines lengthen, we are spending five thousand million dollars annually for naval and military purposes. We who pay the bills must seriously consider the need for a substantial measure of disarmament," he said.

Walker, Ignoring Bitter Denunciations of Meddling, in Mooney Case, Greets Prisoner

San Francisco, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Inside San Quentin's bleak walls, James J. Walker, mayor of New York City, and Thomas Mooney, widely publicized convict, will meet today.

There they will discuss final plans for the plea Mayor Walker will present Dec. 1, when he asks Governor James Rolph Jr., to pardon Mooney. Mooney, serving a life term on his conviction of a charge of having had a part in the Preparedness Day bombing in 1916, was reported cheerful in anticipation of the visit and more hopeful of gaining his freedom than in any time in the past 15 years.

Mayor Walker, pleased with the progress of his plans, said the meeting "might develop some very important matters."

"Naturally I am looking forward to meeting Mooney since I came all the way from New York just to ask for his freedom," Mayor Walker said. Mayor Walker continued to ignore criticisms of his conduct in interceding for Mooney.

"When I came to California," the mayor stated, "I said I expected that plenty of people would accuse me of meddling. I said at that time, however, that I did not intend to answer them. I said that the issue had become so important that it was necessary for me to risk such criticism. I said I was acting only as an attorney and not as mayor of New York. I do not intend to answer any charges."

One of the bitterest denunciations of Mayor Walker's actions came from a member of Governor Rolph's official family, Roland A. Vandegrift, director of the state department of finance, who compared Mayor Walker to old-time kings who, when threatened with internal dissension, started a war with some outside power.

SHARP CRITICISM DIRECTED AT U. S. SECRETARY OF STATE

STIMSON DENIES MAKING STATEMENTS PURPORTEDLY CARRIED BY PRESS

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Ambassador Debuchi, of Japan, after a long talk today with Secretary of State Stimson, told newspaper men that Japanese troops would not march on Chinchow. He said his country's soldiery also was being withdrawn from Tatsihar which was occupied recently.

The ambassador asked to be excused from discussing the statement of the Japanese foreign office regarding remarks made by Stimson yesterday.

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—American efforts to aid a settlement of the Japanese-Chinese troubles in Manchuria were severely shaken today by a statement of the Japanese foreign office sharply critical of Secretary of State Stimson.

The criticism was based on a news agency report other than the United Press.

Washington, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—A demand that the administration disclose its activities in the Manchurian dispute was made today by Senator Hiram Johnson, Rep., Calif.

The senator also demanded to know the true results of the American visits of Premier Laval of France and Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy. He accused the press of "docility" in failing to publish the facts concerning American foreign policy.

Press of statements attributed to Stimson which quoted him as charging:

That the Japanese army had run amuck in Manchuria.

That Japan intends to take Manchuria completely.

The statement also accused Stimson of "disclosing confidential exchanges" between the United States government and Japan.

Denies Making Statement

Secretary of State Stimson after talking for 30 minutes to President Hoover and studying press reports of the Japanese statement, told newspaper correspondents he had never made the statements attributed to him.

Japanese ambassador Debuchi was instructed by his foreign office this morning to inquire of the state department whether the statements credited to Stimson were correct.

The story circulated in Japan, which prompted the foreign office statement was carried by Rengo, a Japanese press agency. It was credited by Rengo to the Associated Press. Byron Price, Washington manager of the Associated Press, denied that his organization had attributed any such statements to Secretary Stimson in anything carried in this country or abroad.

The incident seems to have begun when Stimson in a press conference yesterday expressed surprise that Japanese troops were reported in the press to be advancing on Chinchow, temporary Manchurian capital and concentration point for troops of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang. The city is of tremendous strategic importance.

Stimson told the press Japan had promised not to advance on Chinchow. He disclosed that four days previously he asked American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes to tell Foreign Minister Shidehara in Tokio that press reports of an impending Japanese campaign against Chinese troops near Chinchow, aroused great apprehension on the part of the American state department.

On the following day, according to Stimson, he was assured through Forbes by Shidehara that he, the minister of war, and the Japanese chief of staff were all agreed there should be no hostilities against Chinchow. The assurance was accompanied by word that military orders against such an advance had been issued.

Strike Affecting 50,000 Appears Inevitable

Manchester, Eng., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—A strike affecting 500,000 workers in the Lancashire cotton industry appeared inevitable today after expiration of the present 48-hour week agreement on Dec. 31.

Trade union leaders had little hope of avoiding the strike on New Year's day. The Federation of Master Cotton Spinners announced that the present agreement would be terminated at the end of the year and proposed an increase in working hours and an alteration in wages, said to envisage a 55½-hour week and a 12½ per cent wage cut.

New York, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Five new claimants to the $75,000,000 estate of the late Ella Wendel have filed notice of their claims in surrogate's court.

They are John Wendel, Waukesha, Wis., farmer, who claims fifth-degree relationship to Miss Wendel; Miss Elizabeth Hoppe, 78, of West Bend, Wis., and her three nieces, Miss Henrietta Obermeyer, Miss Clara Obermeyer and Miss Josephine Haas.

Recommends Frequent Transfer of Police

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Recommendation that Minneapolis policemen be transferred frequently from one precinct to another was made in a Hennepin county grand jury report today.

The report was made public today after the grand jury returned no bills yesterday against nearly a score of policemen who were charged with having accepted protection payments from the operator of a speakeasy.

Five New Claimants to Wendel Fortune File

New York, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Five new claimants to the $75,000,000 estate of the late Ella Wendel have filed notice of their claims in surrogate's court.

They are John Wendel, Waukesha, Wis., farmer, who claims fifth-degree relationship to Miss Wendel; Miss Elizabeth Hoppe, 78, of West Bend, Wis., and her three nieces, Miss Henrietta Obermeyer, Miss Clara Obermeyer and Miss Josephine Haas.

PROPOSED CUTS TO SLASH N. P. PAYROLL BY ABOUT $1,500,000

N. P. HAS ALREADY TAKEN ACTION CUTTING SALARIES OF HIGH OFFICIALS

A 10 per cent railroad wage reduction will cut about $80,000,000 from the payrolls of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Burlington and St. Paul roads, according to figures estimates in a Dow, Jones & Co. report published in the Wall Street Journal.

If the wage cut on these lines is made effective it will mean that the Great Northern will reduce its payroll by about $1,525,000, the Northern Pacific by about $1,454,000, the Burlington by $2,316,000, and the St. Paul road by $2,640,000, according to the estimates.

Both rail executives and heads of the railroad labor brotherhoods are considering the possibilities of reduced payrolls. The Northern Pacific already has taken action cutting the salaries of its executives. However, the wages of the labor unions can't be reduced without mutual consent.

The Dow, Jones & Co. report stated that the total cut on all class No. 1 railroads would amount to about $80,000,000 if the 10 per cent reduction was made effective.

The railroad executives and the brotherhood heads are considering the question of wage reductions as a common problem and it generally is expected that some mutual agreement will be worked out.

Labor costs amount to from 60 to 70 per cent of the general expense of operating railroads, according to official figures. If this general item of expense can be cut, railroad executives say, it will make possible expenditures of money for the development of the property.

City Engineer Campbell also called attention to the ordinance ordering the removal of snow from sidewalks within 24 hours after a snowfall. He particularly urged officials in whose custody public buildings are to see that all the snow is removed.

Campbell said that the ordinance provides that unless the snow is removed city forces will do the work and the cost will be charged to the property owner.

PROPOSED CUTS TO SLASH N. P. PAYROLL BY ABOUT $1,500,000

N. P. HAS ALREADY TAKEN ACTION CUTTING SALARIES OF HIGH OFFICIALS

A 10 per cent railroad wage reduction will cut about $800,000 from the payrolls of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Burlington and St. Paul roads, according to figures estimated in a Dow Jones & Co. report published in the Wall Street Journal.

If the wage cut on these lines is made effective it will mean that the Great Northern will reduce its payroll by about $1,525,000, the Northern Pacific by about $1,454,000, the Burlington by $2,316,000, and the St. Paul road by $2,640,000, according to the estimates.

Both rail executives and heads of the railroad labor brotherhoods are considering the possibilities of reduced payrolls. The Northern Pacific already has taken action cutting the salaries of its executives. However, the wages of the labor unions can't be reduced without mutual consent.

The Dow Jones & Co. report stated that the total cut on all class No. 1 railroads would amount to about $80,000,000 if the 10 per cent reduction was made effective.

The railroad executives and the brotherhood heads are considering the question of wage reductions as a common problem and it generally is expected that some mutual agreement will be worked out.

Labor costs amount to from 60 to 70 per cent of the general expense of operating railroads, according to official figures. If this general item of expense can be cut, railroad executives say, it will make possible expenditures of money for the development of the property.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist throughout the world on Sunday, November 29, 1931, is "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, denounced."

The Golden Text is: "Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel; Let not your prophets and your diviners, that be in the midst of you, deceive you, neither hearken to your dreams which ye cause to be dreamed. For they prophesy falsely unto you in my name: I have not sent them, saith the Lord" (Jeremiah 29:8,9).
Among the passages which constitute the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God" (Revelation 2:7).

OUR POWER RESOURCES--

Years back it was thought impossible to generate electric power without a waterfall or a swiftly moving water current. But, times have changed with the years and no longer is it necessary to have any more water in proportion for the operation of a power plant than it does to operate a four-cylinder automobile.

Developments in late years have brought new ideas and new machinery for generating power. Many cities, who own their power plants, have discarded old machinery and as a consequence have brought a high degree of service to the community they serve.

If a city is to own its water and light utility, it need not purchase power from the power industry. It is not imperative that it must secure its power from outside sources. It can generate its own electricity. However, there is always that one feature to be taken into consideration. And, that is if the public utility is able to furnish this requisite at a price where the expenditure attendant the installation of a power plant would be unnecessary.

BUSINESS IS CONVALESCENT--

Feeling that 1932 will bring some business recovery is prevalent among leaders in various sections.

Business throughout the country appears to be convalescent. It apparently is gaining. But it still is weak and requires time.

Everywhere, in a tour of a number of important centers as far west as Kansas City, business men are almost without exception encouraged, and confident of a better year ahead.

They expect better times but not a boom. And most of them hope there will be no such boom as 1929 again. As Henry Ford expressed it, the country will enter a decade of prosperity—not speculative—but a sounder prosperity that will make past prosperity seem small by comparison.

A patient does not come out of the hospital and start turning handsprings. Still he may be able to go back to work and earn—if not his top price—at least a reasonable living out of which he can build a sounder future.

This, in a nutshell, is the summary as gleaned from a United Press dispatch to this newspaper.

Also, this, summarized, is the average feeling of the business community of America today. Some might say this picture is too restrained. And there are hypochondriacs left who would think it a little too cheerful, perhaps. But it represents the fair-est average this writer is able to reach.

Two things, on close examination, appear likely to control the recovery.

One is foreign trade, which affords, not only in cotton and wheat but in some industries, the margin between good times and bad, the indispensable outlet for the surplus and converts red ink into black for American business and agriculture.

The other thing, partially dependent on this foreign trade, is the price of raw commodities. Real prosperity rests partly upon raising wheat and cotton at a profit, for on those two things vast areas in the United States depend for livelihood. It rests also on a profitable condition in oil, copper, coal and lumber, for each of these determine the economic fate of large groups and many communities. These are America's primary sources of new wealth—the things that are taken out of mother earth. All other business is built upon them, upon the transportation of them, sale to those who need them, conversion of them by factories into flour, bread, cloth, gasoline. The millions of persons who buy the products of America's factories all are dependent on them in the final analysis.

This is elementary economics but it was forgotten two years ago by a nation which had its eyes glued on stock-tickers which were grinding out in their inflated quotations more fiction than all of the printing presses of the nation combined.

America has learned—temporarily at least—that the stock market can be a cruel deceiver, and that it registered its highest prices at the very moment the whole world had already started over the precipice. That wild downward ride began some months before when commodity prices began to drop, unnoticed in the frenzy of a climbing stock market.

This is the biggest change that has come over the thinking people of America in these two years of depression—the realization that wheat, cotton, oil and other raw materials are the real pace setters and that when other business goes off on its own, it is trading in I O U's for which an accounting can be delayed only temporarily.

Wheat is getting back toward the cost of production, for an efficient operator. It is not high enough to enable him to roll in profit.

The result is that farmers still are holding to their grain as far as possible. Futures are around 60 cents. Farmers won't feel satisfied until they are at least up in the eighties. Cotton is 49 per cent below prices a year ago. Oil went down under 25 cents a barrel last summer. It is now around 85 cents. But the oil country won't feel like spending much until it goes above a dollar.

General feeling is that in all three of these commodities a long-range increase is in order. In all three great efforts are being made to restrict production and eat down the depressing surpluses.

Foreign buying, equally important, shows some improvement according to the department of commerce. But the major expansion there must wait.

Meantime American industry is taking such ameliorating measures as it can, reducing expenses, making more energetic sales appeals, setting up credit and other machinery to support casualties of the depression. Public and philanthropic agencies are trying to find as much work as possible until normal industry can reabsorb the unemployed.

In pointing the way out, one well-known figure whose experience entitles his opinion to respect, said "Shots in the arm won't do much good. Work and saving must be depended on in the long run."

England is fast cleaning up its slums as a result of two acts of the Parliament which provide that the slums be cleared and the districts be rebuilt with modern dwellings. Since the war more than 1,687,000 new homes have been erected, many of them in the slums districts, and have succeeded in eliminating the congested squalid living conditions of England's poor sections.

BRUCE J. JUPITER, in his father's bad graces, vows to rout Mary, who he believes is a gold-digger. Jupiter has made Mary his heir. Dirk orders Mary to abandon the investigation, but she goes to Miami on the Jupiter yacht, hearing The Fly will be at Hialeah to see his horse run.

She meets COUNT DE LOMA, old acquaintance of COUNTESS LOUISE, Bruce's friend. De Loma is listed as the owner of The Fly's horse. MR. JUPITER buys a second-hand car of the same make as that used by the murderer, and finds Eddie's L. O. U. for $15,000 in it.

Bruce and Louise quarrel because she cannot explain where she got a diamond ring. Louise says it is Mary's. Bruce makes her give the bracelet to Mary, who discovers it was stolen from Mrs. Jupiter the night she was killed. Mary locks it in the hotel safe and takes out the rubies. She has them when she meets De Loma.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVIII

MARY had persuaded herself that

The Fly would not come tonight. It was the only way she could bring herself to approach the meeting-place with any degree of confidence. He would not be there, and she would have worn the rubies for nothing—except to make a little small-talk for the other diners, perhaps. She told herself that, and tried to be sorry. But she wasn't. As the time approached, dread of the encounter turned her knees to jelly.

If she could only have given it up and gone to find Dirk. The joyful expectation of seeing him soon lifted her spirits.

A cool breeze from the bay struck their faces as they came out of the elevator into the informal sort of lobby, set off from the dining-space by tall potted palms. Hovering in a corner, watching the dancing, she caught sight of someone familiar.

George Bowen. Excusing herself, she hurried to meet him. "Come in with us," she begged him, pointing out that at least a third of the men present were in linen suits rather than the required formal dress.

"Not me—I'm just a voice in the wings," Bowen pleaded. "I barged in with my friend here, the society reporter." He brought forward a brown-eyed young woman in a vivid evening frock who could scarcely take her eyes from the ruby necklace long enough to be presented. "I've got to be running along," Bowen went on. "But first," (lowering his voice) "thanks for shooting the Countess out to me. I got a swell shot of her. Well!"

"But I had nothing to do with it," Mary protested. "Did she leave the hotel?"

"Yes. Bruce was with her. I told him the picture was for the society page and he didn't seem to mind. But here's the news—Miss Brown here thinks she knows her!" He turned to his companion. "Tell her about it, will you, Bella?"

Miss Brown smiled. "I know as soon as I saw the proofs that I'd seen her before," she said. "It was when I was doing some publicity for a steamship line. I was coming up from Havana on one of our boats. There was a French actress on board—at least, she said she was an actress. And she could certainly act! I'll say she could.

"She and young what's-his-name—oh, you knew, the Newport society woman's son—can't think of his name—were together all the time on the boat coming up. He was only a kid, and he was gaga about her. She didn't claim to be a countess then—maybe that came later.

"Well, one night there was a big fracas in her stateroom—screams and a lot of thumps and bumps, like someone was getting beaten up. A steward and I took it on the run. Here was this rich boy sitting there stupidly, and her with her clothes half off, the place all muddled up. She said he'd half killed her. But I didn't see a frame-up.

"He said they were drinking together as they'd done every day, when she suddenly began tearing off her clothes and slapping things. He thought she was drunk, but she wasn't. She knew what she was doing all right.

"It was hushed up. The boy's mother paid her off to keep the story from getting out. I was glad to let it ride, too. Steamship companies don't like that kind of rowdy publicity any more than anyone else. But we took care to see she didn't ship on our lines again, and turned our information about her over to the Department of Justice. I don't know what they did with it."

"Her name?" Mary asked. "Do you remember it?"

MISS BROWN shook her head. "Not clearly. Delorme, or something like that, Louise Delorme."

"I'm sending the pictures to the Department of Justice," Bowen cut in eagerly. "I'll have the dope on her in a short while. Neat, eh what?" He gave his companion a congratulatory whack on the back.

"Brownie, I salute you!" "I salute you both!" Mary cried. "It's the most phenomenal luck I ever heard of—your remembering that, Miss Brown. I can't tell you what it means to us all, or how much we thank you!"

"All except Bruce, perhaps," Bowen commented.

Not wishing to keep her two companions waiting any longer, Mary left them to go back to her party.

"Every minute you waste talking to these gossips of yours is costing the boss money," Bates scolded. "Pretty soon there won't be food enough in the place to fill me up."

"But wait till you hear," Mary crowed excitedly. "I've learned all about the Countess. And what nice little playmates you have!"

They turned toward the trellised gate which formed the entrance to the dining section of the roof. The place was crowded—too crowded for comfort. Extra tables had been squeezed in to accommodate the unexpected business which the fete, to be held later in the evening, had brought. Aisles were almost nonexistent, and the dance floor had shrunk to half its size.

The chatter of the crowd, like the roar of a vast human surf, was confusing, and Mary stood still for an instant trying to discover a lane wide enough to squeeze through to reach their table.

Suddenly she was enveloped in a burst of blue-white radiance that almost blinded her, and effectually shut out of sight everything but the small circle of blazing light in which she stood. A ripple of laughter and applause from the crowd steadied her, and told her that they had merely been the victims of a "stunt." Each incoming party was being subjected to brilliant illumination by reflector lamps standing on either side of the entrance, by way of introduction.

Mary followed the beckoning arm of the head-waiter to their table, recognizable by the large white "Reserved" card which was whisked away as they approached.

Jupiter was muttering angrily. "What's the matter with the damn lights? Put a man's eyes out!" But he appeared to enjoy the unexpected publicity.

"That is what I call service!" he remarked. "And lady, you certainly do rate it, with those doll-rags on!"

IN the low-cut ivory satin, her dark head gleaming redly under the glare of the lights, Mary made a breath-taking picture framed in the doorway—the black velvet wrap dropped from slim, satin-smooth shoulders, the blood-red of the Jupiter rubies glowing warmly against the creamy skin.

It is true that not all the undertone of comment was kindly, and she felt it. But the embarrassment such knowledge brought only added a beautiful flush to the pale cheeks, and a deeper luster to the gray eyes. There were many here to-night who read their scandal papers, and remembered—and they frankly craved to get a view of the girl who was reputed to hold the Jupiter automobile millions in the hollow of her hand.

Well, the wise ones murmured, she was good looking enough certainly to have turned any man's head, particularly an old widower's who had spent close to 50 years of his life in respectable wedlock with his first and only wife. Jupiter was a lucky man, said these. And there were others who said "What tosh, her engagement has just been announced to young Rutherford!" And still others pointed out, in rebuttal, that young Rutherford was conspicuously absent, and who could the young man escorting her be, anyhow? Just a herring drawn across the trail, replied the wise ones. And having exhausted the subject, they turned their attention to their food and to a party of incoming dowagers, enduring the lights in their turn, and without either youth or conspicuous beauty to make the ordeal less trying.

Service was slow, but the soup arrived and still there was no sign of De Loma. If he were already there, he must be aware of their presence after that gaudy introduction. He must not be here. That was the only explanation.

Then he came. Mary heard his voice at her elbow, and jumped. She never knew where he came from, how he found his way to her side, without attracting notice. It was as if he had sprung from the ground at her feet in a burst of smoke.

like Beelzebub. But the explanation was quite simple—lone males were not being honored with the spotlight. De Loma had simply walked in the door, and by the very sensible process of following the narrow raised platform which skirted the room, just under the parapet, he had arrived by what seemed miraculous means at the Jupiter table.

SHE looked up quickly, in time to see the fatuous smile freeze on his face as he saw the rubies. His face went pale under its dark tan. The black eyes stared at the gems as if fascinated. His head jerked away as he saw her looking at him. It was the first betraying move she had ever seen him make. But it was enough—plainly the unexpected coming face-to-face with the necklace had unnerved him. He was nervous as a lover as he asked her to dance. A slow thrill of power slipped over Mary, drew her up straight and tall beside him. The rubies rattled on the polished bosom of his dress-shirt. He kept his eyes turned away—his ready gift of tongue seemed to have left him all at once.

The orchestra muted its voice and began to throb out a waltz. The leader crooned the melody softly, in a yearning, passion-laden undertone. It was somehow reminiscent of that other night—the night of her engagement party—Mary thought, leaden-hearted. If only Dirk were here now, to dance it with her—

She looked about, not very hopefully. The lights had been dimmed until only the strings of swaying, brass-broken Japanese lanterns remained. By their uncertain illumination she saw a party being seated at a table beside the dance-floor—two girls and a man. There was much scraping of chairs, re-arranging of places and settling of wraps. It was impossible to see who they were, for they were in semi-darkness while a broad amber glow from a huge spotlight made the dance-floor a sort of mirage of moving figures.

Something about the newcomer reminded Mary of Dirk. . . . her heart plunged wildly. She touched De Loma's arm.

"Over there—someone I want to see." Obliviously he turned about and led her past the table she indicated. Almost immediately they were abreast of it. She did not really expect it to be Dirk. . . . she had been seeing him in various total strangers ever since she learned he was in the hotel. This no doubt was just another optical illusion.

Then suddenly she was looking directly into his eyes. For a long moment they saw no one else, he and she—just that long plunge of eye into eye while mixed emotions swept over them both.

There was a girl's surprised cry, "Why, Enrique!" It was Ethel, gazing at the man she believed to be in South America. De Loma barely nodded. Cornelia's face stared at them frigidly—white, airy, stunned.

Then in the space of an instant Dirk's face changed as if a mask had slipped over it. With a look of stony recognition, he turned away.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Some of the dishes of old New England have been handed down from generation to generation. They are particularly adapted for winter use when hearty fare is wanted. Boston baked beans at Saturday's supper and codfish cakes on Sunday morning is the old-fashioned rule, still observed by many New England housewives.

Boston baked beans are a nourishing and satisfying food that make a well-balanced meal if served with brown bread and a crisp salad of cabbage or greens.

Boston Baked Beans

Two cups peas beans, 1/2 pound salt pork, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon molasses, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon ground mustard, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 small onion, 1 cup boiling water.

Pick over and wash beans. Cover with cold water and let stand overnight. In the morning drain, cover

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Baked apples filled with hot cereal, cream, crisp toast, baked codfish cakes, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Peanut butter milk toast, cottage cheese with shredded lettuce and Russian dressing, grape juice.

DINNER: Boston baked beans, scalloped tomatoes, Boston brown bread, endive and pickled peach salad, Indian pudding, milk, coffee.

with fresh water and bring slowly to the boiling point. When water begins to boil drain and rinse beans in cold water. This prevents them from becoming broken and mushy during baking. In the bean pot put a thin slice of the salt pork and place the onion, peeled but not cut on the pork. Add half the beans. Cut through rind of remaining pork every half inch, making cuts one inch deep, and put on top of beans.

Add remaining beans, leaving the rind of the pork exposed. Mix salt, mustard, pepper, molasses and sugar with boiling water and pour over beans. Add enough more boiling water to cover. Cover bean pot and bake in a slow oven for six hours, removing cover the last hour of baking to allow the rind to become brown and crisp. Serve from bean pot.

Boston brown bread always is steamed rather than baked. Raisins may be added to suit the modern taste, but the original "Boston brown" was made without them.

Boston Brown Bread

One cup graham flour, 1 cup granulated cornmeal, 1 cup rye meal, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1/4 cup molasses, 2 1/2 teaspoons soda, 2 cups sour milk.

Mix rye meal, corn meal and graham flour with salt. Add milk and molasses and mix until smooth. Dissolve soda in 1 teaspoon cold water and stir into batter, beating hard for about thirty seconds. Turn into well-buttered mold and steam three and one-half hours. Then put into a moderate oven for twenty minutes. Do not fill mold more than two-thirds full and fasten cover securely. Otherwise the bread in rising might force off the cover.

For steaming, put the mold on a trivet or any form standard that will elevate it about an inch from the bottom of the kettle. Add boiling water to come up halfway around the mold, cover closely and steam, adding more boiling water as needed. One pound baking powder boxes make attractive shaped loaves or a five-pound lard pail can be used if regulation molds are not at hand.

Astoria, Ore. — There's one beggar who thinks beggars should be choosers. He approached a prominent local merchant and asked to be staked to a meal. The merchant kindly escorted the man to a nearby cafe and told the owner to give him some breakfast. The cafe man had just completed fixing himself a luscious plate full of hot cakes and fried eggs. Feeling sorry for the hungry man, he took his own breakfast from the stove and placed it in front of him. "I won't eat that," said the beggar. "I want a big steak." He's not so particular now.

OUR POWER RESOURCES--

Years back it was thought impossible to generate electric power without a waterfall or a swiftly moving water current. But, times have changed with the years and no longer is it necessary to have any more water in proportion for the operation of a power plant than it does to operate a four-cylinder automobile.

Developments in late years have brought new ideas and new machinery for generating power. Many cities, who own their power plants, have discarded old machinery and as a consequence have brought a high degree of service to the community they serve.

If a city is to own its water and light utility, it need not purchase power from the power industry. It is not imperative that it must secure its power from outside sources. It can generate its own electricity. However, there is always that one feature to be taken into consideration. And, that is if the public utility is able to furnish this requisite at a price where the expenditure attendant the installation of a power plant would be unnecessary.

George Bowen. Excusing herself, she hurried to meet him.

"Come in with us!" she begged him, pointing out that at least a third of the men present were in linen suits rather than the required formal dress.

"Not me—I'm just a voice in the wings," Bowen pleaded. "I barged in with my friend here, the society reporter." He brought forward a brown-eyed young woman in a vivid evening frock who could scarcely face her eyes from the ruby necklace long enough to be presented.

"I've got to be running along," Bowen went on. "But first," (lowering his voice) "thanks for shooting the Countess out to me. I got a swell shot of her. Swell!"

"But I had nothing to do with it," Mary protested. "Did she leave the hotel?"

"Yes, Bruce was with her. I told him the picture was for the society page and he didn't seem to mind. But here's the news—Miss Brown here thinks she knows her!"

He turned to his companion. "Tell her about it, will you, Bella?"

Miss Brown smiled. "I knew as soon as I saw the proofs that I'd seen her before," she said. "It was when I was doing some publicity for a steamship line. I was coming up from Havana on one of our boats. There was a French actress on board—at least, she said she was an actress. And she could certainly act! I'll say she could.

"She and young what's-his-name—oh, you knew, the Newport society woman's son—can't think of his name—were together all the time on the boat coming up. He was only a kid, and he was gaga about her. She didn't claim to be a countess then—maybe that came later.

"Well, one night there was a big fracas in her stateroom—screams and a lot of thumps and bumps, like someone was getting beaten up. A steward and I took it on the run. Here was this rich boy sitting there stupidly, and her with her clothes half off, the place all mused up. She pretended he'd half killed her. But I'm certain it was a frame-up.

"He said they were drinking together as they'd done every day, when she suddenly began tearing off her clothes and slapping things. He thought she was drunk, but she wasn't. She knew what she was doing all right.

"It was hushed up. The boy's mother paid her off to keep the story from getting out. I was glad to let it ride, too. Steamship companies don't like that kind of rowdy publicity any more than anyone else. But we took care to see she didn't ship on our lines again, and turned our information about her over to the Department of Justice. I don't know what they did with it."

"Her name?" Mary asked. "Do you remember it?"

MISS BROWN shook her head. "Not clearly. Delorme, or something like that. Louise Delorme."

"I'm sending the pictures to the Department of Justice," Bowen cut in eagerly. "I'll have the dope on her in a short while. Neat, eh what?"

He gave his companion a congratulatory whack on the back. "Brownie, I salute you!"

"I salute you both!" Mary cried. "It's the most phenomenal luck I ever heard of—your remembering that, Miss Brown. I can't tell you what it means to us all, or how much we thank you!"

"All except Bruce, perhaps," Bowen commented.

Not wishing to keep her two companions waiting any longer, Mary left them to go back to her party.

"Every minute you waste talking to these gossips of yours is costing the boss money," Bates scolded. "Pretty soon there won't be food enough in the place to fill me up."

"But wait till you hear," Mary crowed excitedly. "I've learned all about the Countess. And what nice little playmates you have!"

They turned toward the trellised gate which formed the entrance to the dining section of the roof. The place was crowded—too crowded for comfort. Extra tables had been squeezed in to accommodate the unexpected business which the fete, to be held later in the evening, had brought. Aisles were almost nonexistent, and the dance floor had shrunk to half its size.

The chatter of the crowd, like the roar of a vast human surf, was confusing, and Mary stood still for an instant trying to discover a lane wide enough to squeeze through to reach their table.

Suddenly she was enveloped in a burst of blue-white radiance that almost blinded her, and effectually shut out of sight everything but the small circle of blazing light in which she stood. A ripple of laughter and applause from the crowd steadied her, and told her that they had merely been the victims of a "stunt." Each incoming party was being subjected to brilliant illumination by reflector lamps standing on either side of the entrance, by way of introduction.

Mary followed the beckoning arm of the head-waiter to their table, recognizable by the large white "Reserved" card which was whisked away as they approached.

Jupiter was muttering angrily. "What's the matter with the damn lights? Put a man's eyes out!" But he appeared to enjoy the unexpected publicity.

"That is what I call service!" he remarked. "And lady, you certainly do rate it, with those doll-rags on!"

IN the low-cut ivory satin, her dark head gleaming redly under the glare of the lights, Mary made a breath-taking picture framed in the doorway—the black velvet wrap dropped from slim, satin-smooth shoulders, the blood-red of the Jupiter rubies glowing warmly against the creamy skin.

It is true that not all the undertone of comment was kindly, and she felt it. But the embarrassment such knowledge brought only added a becoming flush to the pale cheeks, and a deeper radiance to the gray eyes. There were many here tonight who read their scandal papers, and remembered . . . and they frankly craned to get a view of the girl who was reputed to hold the Jupiter automobile millions in the hollow of her hand.

Well, the wise ones murmured, she was good looking enough certainly to have turned any man's head, particularly an old widower's who had spent close to 50 years of his life in respectable wedlock with his first and only wife. Jupiter was a lucky man, said these. And there were others who said "What tosh, her engagement has just been announced to young Rutherford!" And still others pointed out, in rebuttal, that young Rutherford was conspicuously absent, and who could the young man escorting her be, anyhow? Just a herring drawn across the trail, replied the wise ones. And having exhausted the subject, they turned their attention to their food and to a party of incoming dowagers, enduring the lights in their turn, and without either youth or conspicuous beauty to make the ordeal less trying.

Service was slow, but the soup arrived and still there was no sign of De Loma. If he were already there, he must be aware of her introduction after that gaudy introduction. He must not be here. That was the only explanation.

Then he came. Mary heard his voice at her elbow, and jumped. She never knew where he came from, how he found his way to her side, without attracting notice. It was as if he had sprung from the ground at her feet in a burst of smoke.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Some of the dishes of old New England have been handed down from generation to generation. They are particularly adapted for winter use when hearty fare is wanted. Boston baked beans at Saturday's supper and codfish cakes on Sunday morning is the old-fashioned rule, still observed by many New England housewives.

Boston baked beans are a nourishing and satisfying food that make a well balanced meal if served with brown bread and a crisp salad of cabbage or greens.

Boston Baked Beans
Two cups pea beans, 1/2 pound salt pork, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon molasses, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon ground mustard, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 small onion, 1 cup boiling water.

Pick over and wash beans. Cover with cold water and let stand overnight. In the morning drain, cover

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Baked apples filled with hot cream, crisp toast, baked codfish cakes, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Peanut butter milk toast, cottage cheese with shredded lettuce and Russian dressing, grape juice.

onion, peeled but not cut on the pork. Add half the beans. Cut through ring of remaining pork every half inch, making cuts one inch deep, and put on top of beans.

Add remaining beans, leaving the ring of the pork exposed. Mix salt, mustard, pepper, molasses and sugar with boiling water and pour over beans. Add enough more boiling water to cover. Cover bean pot and bake in a slow oven for six hours, removing cover the last hour and steam being to be held later in the evening, had brought. Boston Brown Bread
One cup graham flour, 1 cup granulated cornmeal, 1 cup rye meal, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 3/4 cup molasses, 2 1/2 teaspoons soda, 2 cups sour milk.

Mix rye meal, corn meal and graham flour with salt. Add milk and molasses and mix until smooth. Dissolve soda in 1 teaspoon cold water and stir into batter, beating hard for about thirty seconds. Turn into well buttered mold and steam three and one-half hours. Then put into a moderate oven for twenty minutes. Do not fill mold more than two-thirds full and fasten cover securely. Otherwise the bread in rising might force off the cover.

For steaming, put the mold on a trivet or any form standard that will elevate it about an inch from the bottom of the kettle. Add boiling water to come up halfway around the mold, cover closely and steam, adding more boiling water as needed. One pound baking powder boxes make attractive shaped loaves or a five-pound lard pail can be used if regulation molds are not at hand.

Astoria, Ore. — There's one beggar who thinks beggars should be choosers. He approached a prominent local merchant and asked to be staked to a meal. The merchant kindly escorted the man to a nearby cafe and told the owner to give him some breakfast. The cafe man had just completed fixing himself a luscious plate full of hot cakes and fried eggs. Feeling sorry for the hungry man, he took his own breakfast from the stove and placed it in front of him. "I won't eat that," said the beggar. "I want a big steak." He's not so particular now.

Brainerd has always boasted of liberal minded business men. Liberal in co-operation, money and time. Now they are engaged in a worthy cause, that of boosting Brainerd by boosting her railroads.

The "Ship and Travel by Rail Movement" is well under way. It is gaining momentum. Brainerd merchants are back of it 100 per cent strong.

In all fairness, isn't it right that the employees of this city's two great railroad systems get 100 per cent behind the merchants? One will help the other, and together, in a mutual understanding of co-operation, both will be benefitted beyond measure.

Merchants of Brainerd are entitled to your business. Depressed conditions have hit them, too, and out of town trading tends to weaken the moral and civic spirit of even the strongest. In the spirit of co-operation and duty to your community . . . let's TRADE AT HOME . . . and more goods will be shipped by rail, thus benefitting us both.

QUIN PARKER GIVES FIRST HAND STORY OF FOOTBALL CLASH

INTEREST MAY ASSURE ANNUAL MEET BETWEEN NISSWA AND MERRIFIELD

By QUIN PARKER
The battle of sticks, between Merrifield and Nisswa, on the latter's grounds Thursday afternoon resulted in a 12 to 6 defeat for Nisswa.

This game, judging from the interest shown, bids fair to become an annual event.

The game was played on a snow covered field, which with the frozen condition of the ground and the slippery ball, made execution of complicated plays difficult and consequently most plays were straight bucks off tackle or wide end runs, with only an occasional forward pass.

Many Humorous Incidents
There were about two hundred spectators, mostly Brainerdites, and because there were many players on both teams who had never played before, in fact there were several who had never before seen a game, there were plenty of humorous incidents to bring mirth to the crowd. There were instances where individuals, in their desire to serve "dear old Harvard," forgot the instructions of their coaches and threw football conventionalities by the board and then and there proceeded to either revise, violate or eliminate any rule in the football manual that stood between them and a touchdown and when they had finished, the present book of football rules resembled some of our present day magazines, two covers with advertising and nothing in between. They proceeded to write their motto "the end justifies the means" in the code of the golden rule.

They proceeded to take the hitherto honest and upright umpire and head line man and make of them alternately vascillating opportunists or non-entities.

They pleaded with them at one moment and cursed them the next. They ruled the snow covered Merrifield athletic field by the power of the kick in the boot or the sock in the good right fist. They there on that Thanksgiving day when most of the unemployed were sitting beside their fires listening to the radio returns of tea party university games, laid the foundations of a feud that will last as long as Nisswa is a summer resort and long after the Merrifield captain has had his beard shorn.

Thrills Come Fast
However, aside from the history that was written that day, there were thrills galore. Long runs where ball carriers were apparently headed for touchdowns only to be brought down by some tackler springing up from nowhere, players thrown for losses behind their own lines by fast, energetic tacklers and a specimen of line holding that would have made old Gil Dobie forget his gloom.

Palmer and Bedore made the touchdowns for Merrifield by line smashes off their tackles and long runs for touchdowns while Buscher made the tally for Nisswa by an end run from tally for Nisswa by an end run from two minutes of play.

It would be unfair to attempt to pick the individual stars because every man gave all that was in him and no man can shine without the cooperation of the other ten.

A collection was taken at the game and the receipts will be used for brightening the Christmas of the children in the vicinity.

Notes of the Game
Mr. Gray, the school teacher at Merrifield who played for a period of the game, had his face lifted by a specialist in the Nisswa line. He says that he has not blown his nose since.

The game was arranged for less than a week before Thanksgiving and the only practice that the Merrifield

Canzoneri Rated With Best Lightweights in World of Boxing

NEBRASKA TACKLE EXPECTED TO REJOIN SQUAD WITH BRIDE

Chicago, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Hugh Rhea, Nebraska tackle, was expected to rejoin the Cornhuskers' squad here today, probably with a new bride. Bible said he gave Rhea permission to leave the squad at Pittsburgh where the Cornhuskers were defeated by Pitt, 40-0, Thanksgiving day. Rhea's teammates said they understood he had been married to Miss Margaret Danielson after the game.

team had was in the school house, the night before the game and we understand Nisswa was in about the same fix.

Quin Parker still has his beard. It's a lucky thing he did not play on the line.

Hank Anderson, the genial pole climber, threw both arms out of joint reaching for a fumble while about six men were sitting on him. Hank said that whenever the Merrifield right tackled him it was like being hit with a concrete wall and the worst part of it was the other fellow seemed to enjoy it.

Art Cleveland broke a finger in his first tackle of the game.

Jackson of Nisswa made the mistake that many players do. He made a fine run but he looked back over his shoulder and thereby delayed his progress just enough to be caught short of the goal.

Two Merrifield players did not get into the game but then they are only sophomores and have two more years to go.

Charlie Bedore, playing his first game, says that he could not think while going down on the kickoff whether the coach had told him he could or could not use his hands so he dropped them to his side and dove head first into the receiver. He says he can still see stars.

Your correspondent has not had the opportunity of interviewing the Nisswa players for humorous incidents as observed by them but possibly Johnnie and Taft can tell them to the world.

Aitkin Wins 21 Grid Games in Three Years

In the last three years the Aitkin high school football team has played 24 games, competing with some of the strongest teams in the state, namely Brainerd, Crosby-Ironton, St. Cloud, etc. Of the 24 games Aitkin has lost 2, tied 1, and won 21.

SING SING ELEVEN TO PLAY DESPITE CAUSTIC CRITICISM

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Sing Sing authorities prepared today for the game here Sunday with the Poughkeepsie All-stars, announcing 200 fans would accompany the All-stars, this in the face of an attack on "publicized football games" at the prison.

The criticism was made by Supreme Court Justice William F. Bleakley, who declared "advertising convicts and making heroes of them is generally bad."

Three Summer Residents Here Entered in World's Billiard Tourney Monday

The 1931 world's championship pocket billiard tournament, with a field of twelve players entered, will open Monday night in Philadelphia with three entries well known in Brainerd. Prize money totalling $25,000 will be distributed among the players. First place will be worth $7,200 in cash and 16 per cent of the net gate receipts which should bring the first prize to $10,000.

Sixty-six games will be played and the tournament will extend over nineteen playing days. The final game will be played on the night of Dec. 21. Erwin Rudolph, Cleveland, defending champion; Johnny Layton, Sedalia, Mo., former champion, and Marcel Camp, Detroit, are among the leading contestants. All are former summer residents of the Brainerd lake region.

MOTHER'S TEARS AND DOCTOR'S DIAGNOSIS NEARLY BARRED HIM

BROOKLYN ITALIAN BATTLES WAY TO SEVERAL TITLES IN RING WORLD

New York, Nov. 28.—There was Jack McAuliffe, who ruled the roost through nine rough years and retired undefeated in 1893.

There was Joe Gans, outspeeding them afoot and blinding them with leather for seven bitter years.

There was Benny Leonard, who, when he couldn't out-punch them or out-speed them, out-tricked them for almost eight seasons and retired undefeated.

And now it's Tony Canzoneri, combining some of the craftiness that distinguished each of those former idols. There may be protests at the comparison. But protests or none, the little Brooklyn Italian, as featherweight, then lightweight and junior welterweight champion, goes down in my book as one of the great 135-pound fighting men.

On the wall of a small New Orleans fight club is tacked the picture of a grinning little man in fighting togs receiving a silver loving cup from a middle-aged man dressed in white flannels and brown and white sport oxfords.

On the mantel in a beautiful home set down on 44 wide acres at Mariboro, N. Y., stands that loving cup, a treasure cherished equally with the gold belt they buckled around Tony's waist one night just a little more than a year ago.

The picture—it was Tony's triumphant return to his boyhood home with the world's lightweight championship—was taken last winter. The donor—the fellow in the white flannels—was Johnny Galway, who operates the Gayoso Club in New Orleans where Tony learned to fight. The mantel—the one on which the trophy stands—is in the home Tony maintains for his mother and father and sisters and brothers.

But do you know Johnny Galway? He's boss at the Gayoso, an incubator for young gamecocks. His boys haven't lost a Southern A. A. U. boxing championship in eight years of warfare. Now get what Johnny has to say.

"About 10 years ago, a fellow introduced Tony Canzoneri to me, saying, 'Johnny, here is one of the toughest 75-pound kids in New Orleans. Put him on with one of the small boys in one of your shows.' I did, and Tony lost. But that was the only amateur bout he ever dropped in New Orleans. 'He was 13 then, and developing fast. I began to bring him along carefully for the 100-pound championship. Then came trouble.

"On the day of the championships, Tony's brother, Joe, came to me and said his mother refused to let Tony fight. I hurried over to the Canzoneri home and there met his mother. 'I no wanna my Tony to fight. They kills my Tony,' she cried, and her wailings would not be stopped. Meantime, I saw Tony's father and explained the situation to him. Suddenly he turned to his weeping wife and said: 'Stoppa you cry. Tony's gonna fight, see. Ima da boss here. I say Tony's gonna fight. All right, Mr. Gal-a-way, Tony can fight.'

"That settled that, but the next was totally unexpected. A doctor examining the boys that night said Tony had a weak heart and should not go on. I didn't know what to do. Tony's father had said he could fight, and if he didn't his mother would have to know why. If I told her, she'd have blamed it on boxing and only worried more.

"But Dr. Gomila, present city commissioner of New Orleans, saved the day for me and perhaps saved Tony Canzoneri for the boxing world. He happened along and I asked him to examine Tony.

"This is a fine boy, Johnny, and looks like a champion," Dr. Gomila said after his examination. And Tony went out to win the 100-pound championship."

The rest of the story has been told by Tony's thumping fists. He gained the featherweight championship in a fight with Benny Bass and lost it in another with Andre Routis. Sammy Mandell repulsed his efforts to land the lightweight title, but Al Singer couldn't do it a few months later. He then gambled his now crown against Jackie (Kid) Berg's junior welterweight title and came out with two championships.

Canzoneri said three years ago that he would retire if he was successful in his quest for three world championships. He has them now, counting the featherweight crown he won and lost a few years ago.

Will he retire? Probably not immediately, although months of idleness now appear before him. There's nobody in his division to fight him, unless Billy Petrolle can shave down to 135 pounds. And Tony by nature is just too small to build himself up to a higher division.

ELEVATOR IN CHICAGO HOTEL TAMES HANLEY'S WILDCAT PLAYERS

Chicago, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—The swift descent which 10 Northwestern football players experienced in an elevator last night "wasn't anything compared to the scare Purdue give the boys today," Coach Dick Hanley said today. Hanley repeatedly has warned the team against overconfidence.

Although it was said the elevator at the Chicago Beach hotel, where the squad spent last night, fell six stories to the basement, it was explained that a mechanical device slowed the car's descent and presented serious injuries to the passengers.

George Potter, regular quarterback, and Art Jens, substitute end, were the only players who received injuries which threatened to prevent their playing today.

Other players in the elevator were: Kenneth Meehan, Paul Engbreiten, Paul McDonald, Roy Auguston, Harold Weldin, Chester Sutton, Kenneth Fossier and Andrew Valentine and Student Manager Stewart Knapp.

Dempsey Disposes of 3 Foes in Three Rounds

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Jack Dempsey, climbing what he says the "comeback trail" toward the heavyweight championship of the world, fought with both hands here last night in disposing of three opponents in less than three rounds.

Rufino Alvarez, 204-pound Central American, who claims the championship of Mexico, and Ernie Musick, 205-pound fighter from Denver, were knocked out in less than a round each. Jimmy Long, 208-pound Detroit, lost in the first round of the third exhibition on a technical knockout.

CAMPOLO FOLDS UP UNDER BATTERING OF PRIMO CARNERA

"WORLD'S DREADNAUGHT CHAMPIONSHIP" CLAIMED BY GIANT BY WIN

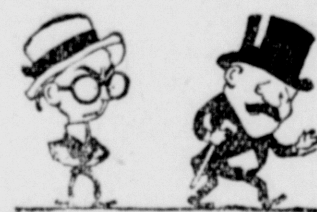

New York, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—The oft-exploded Primo Carnera "super man" myth was revived today, with the Italian giant boasting the "world's dreadnaught championship" as proof of his prowess.

Primo gained his title through a two-round knockout of Victorio Campolo, 224-pound Argentine Gauchito, in a scheduled 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night before 13,000 spectators.

The "dreadnaught" competition is limited to the half-dozen ring men more than 6 feet 3 inches in height and scaling more than 220 pounds.

Carnera's knockout of Campolo showed the big Italian to better advantage than his few previous honest bouts, but did not impress capable boxing judges. It proved that Primo is the master of Campolo, once touted as a certain future heavyweight champion, and gave new proof of Carnera's stamina and courage, but did nothing to remove doubts regarding his punching power and skill.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—The postponed Ernie Schaaf-Young Stribling heavyweight bout probably will be staged late next month or early in January, Chicago stadium officials announced today. The match, scheduled for December 3, was called off because of an injury to Stribling's hand. Efforts to get King Levinsky, Chicago, to meet Schaaf on that date were unsuccessful.

QUIN PARKER GIVES FIRST HAND STORY OF FOOTBALL CLASH

INTEREST MAY ASSURE ANNUAL MEET BETWEEN NISSWA AND MERRIFIELD

By QUIN PARKER
The battle of sticks, between Merrifield and Nisswa, on the latter's grounds Thursday afternoon resulted in a 12 to 6 defeat for Nisswa.

This game, judging from the interest shown, bids fair to become an annual event.

The game was played on a snow covered field, which with the frozen condition of the ground and the slippery ball, made execution of complicated plays difficult and consequently most plays were straight bucks off tackle or wide end runs, with only an occasional forward pass.

Many Humorous Incidents
There were about two hundred spectators, mostly Brainerdites, and because there were many players on both teams who had never played before, in fact there were several who had never before seen a game, there were plenty of humorous incidents to bring mirth to the crowd. There were instances where individuals, in their desire to serve "dear old Harvard," forgot the instructions of their coaches and threw football conventions by the board and then there proceeded to either revise, violate or eliminate any rule in the football manual that stood between them and a touchdown and when they had finished, the present book of football rules resembled some of our present day magazines, two covers with advertising and nothing in between. They proceeded to write their motto "the end justifies the means" in the code of the guidelines.

They proceeded to take the hitherto honest and upright umpire and head linesman and make of them alternately vascillating opportunists or non-entities.
They pleaded with them at one moment and cursed them the next. They ruled the snow covered Merrifield athletic field by the power of the kick in the boot or the sock in the good right fist. They there on that Thanksgiving day when most of the unemployed were sitting beside their fires listening to the radio returns of tea party university games, laid the foundations of a feud that will last as long as Nisswa is a summer resort and long after the Merrifield captain has had his beard shorn.

Thrills Come Fast
However, aside from the history that was written that day, there were thrills galore. Long runs where ball carriers were apparently headed for touchdowns only to be brought down by some tackler springing up from nowhere, players thrown for losses behind their own lines by fast, energetic tacklers and a specimen of line holding that would have made old Gil Dobie forget his gloom.

Palmer and Bedore made the touchdowns for Merrifield by line smashes off their tackles and long runs for touchdowns while Buscher made the tally for Nisswa by an end run from tally for Nisswa by an end run from two minutes of play.

It would be unfair to attempt to pick the individual stars because every man gave all that was in him and no man can shine without the cooperation of the other ten.

A collection was taken at the game and the receipts will be used for brightening the Christmas of the children in the vicinity.

Notes of the Game
Mr. Gray, the school teacher at Merrifield who played for a period of the game, had his face lifted by a specialist in the Nisswa line. He says that he has not blown his nose since.

The game was arranged for less than a week before Thanksgiving and the only practice that the Merrifield

NEBRASKA TACKLE EXPECTED TO REJOIN SQUAD WITH BRIDE

Chicago, Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Hugh Rhea, Nebraska tackle, was expected to rejoin the Cornhuskers' squad here today, probably with a new bride. Bible said he gave Rhea permission to leave the squad at Pittsburgh where the Cornhuskers were defeated by Pitt, 40-0, Thanksgiving day. Rhea's teammates said they understood he had been married to Miss Margaret Danielson after the game.

team had was in the school house, the night before the game and we understand Nisswa was in about the same fix.

Quin Parker still has his beard. It's a lucky thing he did not play on the line.

Hank Anderson, the genial pole climber, threw both arms out of joint reaching for a fumble while about six men were sitting on him. Hank said that whenever the Merrifield right tackled him it was like being hit with a concrete wall and the worst part of it was the other fellow seemed to enjoy it.

Art Cleveland broke a finger in his first tackle of the game.

Jackson of Nisswa made the mistake that many players do. He made a fine run but he looked back over his shoulder and thereby delayed his progress just enough to be caught short of the goal.

Two Merrifield players did not get into the game but then they are only sophomores and have two more years to go.

Charlie Bedore, playing his first game, says that he could not think while going down on the kickoff whether the coach had told him he could or could not use his hands so he dropped them to his side and dove head first into the receiver. He says he can still see stars.

Your correspondent has not had the opportunity of interviewing the Nisswa players for humorous incidents as observed by them but possibly Johnnie and Taft can tell them to the world.

SING SING ELEVEN TO PLAY DESPITE CAUSTIC CRITICISM

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 28.—(U.P.)—Sing Sing authorities prepared to let on which the trophy stands—in the home Tony maintains for his mother and father and sisters and brothers.

But do you know Johnny Galway? He's boss at the Gayoso, an incubator for young gamecocks. His boys haven't lost a Southern A. A. U. boxing championship in eight years of warfare. Now get what Johnny has to say.

"About 10 years ago, a fellow introduced Tony Canzoneri to me, saying, 'Johnny, here is one of the toughest 75-pound kids in New Orleans. Put him on with one of the small boys in one of your shows.' I did, and Tony lost. But that was the only amateur bout he ever dropped in New Orleans."

"He was 13 then, and developing fast. I began to bring him along carefully for the 100-pound championship. Then came trouble."

"On the day of the championships, Tony's brother, Joe, came to me and said his mother refused to let Tony fight. I hurried over to the Canzoneri home and there met his mother."

MOTHER'S TEARS AND DOCTOR'S DIAGNOSIS NEARLY BARRED HIM

BROOKLYN ITALIAN BATTLES WAY TO SEVERAL TITLES IN KING WORLD

New York, Nov. 28.—There was Jack McAuliffe, who ruled the roost through nine rough years and retired undefeated in 1893.

There was Joe Gans, outspeeding them afoot and blinding them with leather for seven bitter years.

There was Benny Leonard, who, when he couldn't out-punch them or out-speed them, out-tricked them for almost eight seasons and retired undefeated.

And now it's Tony Canzoneri, combining some of the craftiness that distinguished each of those former idols. There may be protests at the comparison. But protests or none, the little Brooklyn Italian, as featherweight, then lightweight and junior welterweight champion, goes down in my book as one of the great 135-pound fighting men.

On the wall of a small New Orleans fight club is tacked the picture of a grinning little man in fighting togs receiving a silver loving cup from a middle-aged man dressed in white flannels and brown and white sport oxfords.

On the mantel in a beautiful home set down on 44 wide acres at Marlboro, N. Y., stands that loving cup, a treasure cherished equally with the gold belt they buckled around Tony's waist one night just a little more than a year ago.

The picture—it was Tony's triumphant return to his boyhood home with the world's lightweight championship—was taken last winter. The donor—the fellow in the white flannels—was Johnny Galway, who operates the Gayoso Club in New Orleans where Tony learned to fight. The mantel—the one on which the trophy stands—is in the home Tony maintains for his mother and father and sisters and brothers.

But do you know Johnny Galway? He's boss at the Gayoso, an incubator for young gamecocks. His boys haven't lost a Southern A. A. U. boxing championship in eight years of warfare. Now get what Johnny has to say.

SKEEZIX EXHORTS BRAINERD PEOPLE TO BUY XMAS SEALS

DRIVE OFFICIALLY OPENED
THANKSGIVING DAY WITH BROADCAST OVER WCCO

"Folks, its time to buy your Christmas Seals," says Skeezix on a brightly colored insert in letters which will be mailed with a consignment of Christmas Seals to more than 300 residents of Brainerd this week giving them an opportunity to participate in the fight against tuberculosis and to aid in the health program in Crow Wing county, according to an announcement from Mrs. W. C. Rasch, chairman of the Seal sale committee in Brainerd.

Official opening of the Seal sale was broadcast over Twin City radio stations of the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day. Dr. E. A. Meyerding, executive secretary of the Minnesota Public Health Association, will speak over KSTP at 4:45 o'clock and Rev. W. C. Sainsbury will be heard over WCCO at 4 o'clock. The campaign will continue through Christmas.

A bird's-eye-view of the work that Christmas Seals promote is shown on the mail seal insert which lists sanatoria for treatment of tuberculosis, tuberculosis and other health clinics, tuberculin skin testing and x-rays among school children, health surveys in the schools, children's preventoria and fresh air camps, medical research in tuberculosis and a thorough health educational program in the schools as part of the national effort to eradicate tuberculosis.

"Buy all you can," urges Mrs. Rasch in her letter accompanying the seals this year. Those who failed to receive Seals through the mail, and who wish to contribute, should get in touch with local headquarters. In addition to Mrs. Rasch, the local Christmas Seal committee includes Mrs. A. C. Mraz, Mrs. Rose Parker, Mrs. J. A. Bachelder, Mrs. Hilding Swanson, Mrs. Ernest Butler, Mrs. M. T. Gerber and Mrs. J. Ames came east last Tuesday from the coast where he had been linked romantically with Miss Claire, the former wife of John Gilbert. He had conferred with Tom Van Dyke on the latter's play, "Interview," and was enthusiastic over its possibilities. Miss Claire, it was understood, was not so enthusiastic.
